OFFICE-HOLDING DON'T PAY

Several More Members of President Harrison's Cabinet Discuss the Subject.

Secretary Tracy Intended to Resign Because It Cost More to Live in Washington than His Salary-Views of Secretary Rusk.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 .- Secretary Tracy lives in a modest three-story house, one of a row on the north side of K street, near Fourteenth street. It is furnished handsomely but not luxuriously. The Secretary was in the reception-room when your | ing arteries of the murdered couple. The correspondent called, reading his newspa- mind naturally suggested the destruction per. He had just finished his luncheon, which he always eats at home. At first he | element, more than any other, could effecthesitated to express an opinion about the | nally remove every trace which might lead desirability of office-holding. Finally he to the apprehension of the assassin by a said: "It is altogether a question of a discovery of the clothing worn when the man's willingness to make personal sacri- | deed was committed. In the evidence fices to his country. The salary of a Cabinet officer-$8,000 a year-is beggarly. A developed that upon the arrival of the popoor man cannot afford to accept a lice officers at the scene of the murder they Cabinet position. Of course there is lifted the covers from the stove and disgreat honor connected with the place. But covered the dying embers of a fire, with there is great loss. The cost of living in Washington is very great. Do you know to burn something. It was disclosed bethat story about the Cabinet officer who | fore the grand jury by one of Lizzie Borwanted to rent a house in Washington? No. Well, as the story goes, he went to see the house and the lady who was showing it to him told him that the rent would be six thousand a year. He pondered for a moment. 'I assure you, Mr. Secretary, that that is not unreasonable,' she said, 'Oh, I do not question that,' he replied. 'I wasn't thinking of that. I was just wondering what I would do with the other two thousand." "You were one of the seven Cabinet offi-cers who intended to resign?"

"Were there seven?" said the Secretary. "Who was the eighth? I have not made any canvass of the Cabinet. It does not make much difference, though, since the election. Yes, I intended to resign. I could not afford to stay here for eight years. It is not so much my expenses here as the loss of business in my profession. "Are you going back to the law!"

es, I shall return to practice. That is as definite a plan as I have made. "And the story that President Harrison was going into partnership with you-?" "Was made out of whole cloth," said the ecretary. I have always known that the President would return to Indianapolis to practice law."

"Can you give me an idea of what it costs a Cabinet officer to live here?" 'It has cost me a great deal more than $15,000 year," said the Secretary, "and since the burning of my house I have lived very quietly. We did not go out for a year, and after that I knew that my stay here would be short and we did not attempt anything. The expenses of a household, though, are not everything. A Cabinet officer is expected to contribute to all sorts of thingspolitics, charity-there are continual demands on his purse. No. I could not bave stayed here after March 4 even if the President had been re-elected.

VIEWS OF THE FARMER STATESMAN. I found Secretary Rusk seated at hi desk in the Agricultural Department. When I asked if office-holding paid, he said: "You will find it pretty hard to get satisfactory answers to that question. I fear. You see, there are a great many things to be said on both sides, for and against, and people are liable to get these two turned around. One of the unplease ant things, for instance, about a Cabinet office is that the salary is incommensurate with the unavoidable expenses, and a man has to draw a little too heavily on his other resources, which is all very well when these resources are pretty good, but rather vexatious when they are but moderate. But indeed," and the Secretary thoughtfully stroked his beard. "the most unpleasant feature to me o holding high office like this is the necessity of telling people you can't give them places. The pressure for appointment is constant, and I am often obliged to say, in cases, too, where I know the applicant can do the work and that he or she is in want, perhaps with no bread in the house, that I have no place to give. We have 150 employes in the seed department, mostly women, whose work is not skilled and whose places do not come within the civilservice rules. They work during a part of the year only, and draw a per diem pay, The applications are most numerous for these places, and I have had as many as a hundred in a single day. "The attractive feature of this depart-ment was the fact that there was something new to be done here. Under the commissionership this office had gotten into a rut. Indeed, I was inclined to doubt whether it would be possible for me to lift it out of that rut, and, for that reason besitated about accepting the place, but I finally made up my mind that I could accomplish something, and so I came here. have bad, on the whole, gratifying success though there are still some things which should like to finish up, and I have other things in view which I should like to get started and put on a good footing before I leave. Of course I came here with the advantage of many years' advantage I can tell you." The Secretary green hand I would have had a good deal harder row to hoe; but I have been in publie life twenty-six years-almost continuously since the war. For four years I was Controller of our State. Then I spent six years in Congress. Then I was Governor for seven years just before I came here. one of the committee on agriculture gave me great advantages. When a Congress-man came into my office to see me I could put myself in his place. I knew how he felt and what he wanted. Perhaps that is the reason I have not had any trouble with any one since I came to Washington. WILL RETURN TO HIS FARM. "Where am I going? I shall go back to my home in Wisconsin, to my farm in Vernon county. It will seem pleasant to me to be among my own people again; to go back to my own town and sit on a box in front of the store and talk with the old farmers from the country. A man can't know and understand the people unless he goes among them and talks with them. like to do that, and when I have talked | iffs are the relatives of the parties menwith some thirty or forty of one class and find out what they think of things, and what their condition form a pretty good idea of the condition of the class which they represent. It was this which gave me such confidence in the re-election of President Harrison. I have not found a single man in the farming class of people who was dissatisfied with the administration, and I have talked with a great many of them. It was the labor vote that beat us organized labor, which votes as a unit. That class seems to be dissatisfied with their share of benefits under our present sys-

"As I have said, while I have the gratification of feeling that I have been able to accomplish something while in this officesomething insuring tangible results to the class this department represents-there is much to be done yet, and there is a broad field here for a man who takes my place, provided he be the right man in the right place, and that his heart be in his work." l'ostmaster-general Wanamaker has been busy with his annual report for two weeks and he has been denied to all visitors. So has Secretary Elkins. But their views on the subject of office-holding are well known. Mr. Wanamaker made up his mind some time ago that he would return to Philadelphia to resume the supervision of his snormous business there as soon as he sould do so. He would have resigned some time ago if he had not been under fire from the partisan press, and if he had not had a strong interest in pushing the plans for a postal telegraph, for a house collection, and for which he has laid before Congress from time to time. Mr. Elkips has had the bonor of serving in the Cabinet, and he wants to tree himself from the restrictions of oficial life and get back to his home life and nis business interests in West Virginia.

THE BORDEN MURDER CASE.

Disposition of the Blood-Stained Clothing the Beffling Point in the State's Case.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 3 .- The Journal this morning says that one of the baffling points in the investigation by the State in the Borden murder case was the methods used by the murderer to destroy the garments which he or she had worn during the committal of the deed, and which, according to the medical experts, must have been covered with blood from the upward spurtof the tell-tale parments by fire, for that submitted at the preliminary trial it was the presence of ashes, the latter giving inden's most intimate friends that there was a bright fire in that stove but a short time before the curious officer lifted the covera fire strong enough to have destroyed evidences of crime even were those evidences bloodstained clothes-and inthat stove upon the morning when Andrew Borden and his wife were murdered there were thrust a woman's dress and rapidly the blazing flames destroyed the garment until a few moments after the introduction into the fire-box nothing remained of it but a few ashes. Then the fire died away. The prisoner's friends can say truthfully that there is no evidence to show that the dress which was destroyed by fire on the morning of Aug. 4 belonged to her. They may add that the one who gave the above information to the grand jury did not describe the texture of this garment, did not say that it was y way disugnied by bloodstains or an other kind of stains, and failed to say that though familiar with Lizzie Borden's wardrobe, the witness had never seen anything like this dress in the apparel of the young woman. All this is equally true, but, nevertheless, the grand jury was told that a dress was burned.

The testimony presented yesterday in relation to the McHenry-Trickey episode was that, during the negotiations between the two, the Fall River officers were kept acquainted with all particulars, and that every transaction between the two was witnessed by officers connected with the case. The indictment against Trickey was found on the strength of stories to the effect that he attempted, through Mrs. Mc-Henry, to secure the departure of Bridget Scilivan from the State by the payment of a sum of money. The Journal further asserts that the ten days' adjournment of the grand jury was due solely to the desire of Attorney-general Pillsbury and District Attorney Knowlton to secure a unanimous vote for an indictment by furnishing corroborative testimony to some already adduced, yet the vote was not unanimous, although it was practically so, the dissenters refraining altogether from voting.

OPPOSED TO SUNDAY CLOSING.

'ardinal Gibbons Thinks the World's Fair Should be Kept Open Every Day.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.-In reference to the question of opening the world's fair on Sunday, J. R. Thompson, secretary of the World's Fair-opening Association, has received a letter from Cardinal Gibbons, in which the prelate says:

The world's fair will gather together the most wonderful productions of human skill and inzenuity-the results of the evolutions and prog ress of ages. No one should be prevented from seeing these works of man, and every opportunity should be afforded. The Sunday closing of the spectaçle would be very unfortunate for many isands of our countrymen, who would be mpted to spend the day in dissipation. In their name I would favor the opening of the fair sunday afternoon to evening, with the provision that all machinery should be stopped and all laporing work that will not be urgently necessary should cease. In this I do not see any desecrahose who will visit the fair on these days wil surely inclined to raise their minds and hearts to Him who inspired men to produce such mar-velous things. I am very faithfull yours in J. CARD. GIBBONS.

ALLEGED MIRACLES PAY.

The "Picture" on the Window of the Canton Catholic Church Bringing in Lots of Money.

Sr. Paul, Dec. 3.-Representative J. R. Nelson, of Canton, who is now in the city, says the excitement over the picture in the window of the Canton Catholic Church continues as strong as ever, and that the people are still visiting the place. It is estimated that the priest there has blessed over ten thousand people since the discovery of the alleged miracle. Mr. Nelson smiled as he continued: "If I had been a | says he was not able to see the picture the way a good many claimed to see it. At one time he thought he saw a dim outline of a face just as one can frame a picture in the clouds, but it looked to him more like a man's face than a woman's. A good many bave apparently been healed. he says, but it is reported that the priest is My experience as a Congressman and as a skillful physician, and that he has used a great deal of medicine lately. The sale of articles has brought the church a handsome sam, and the priest has purchased a large tract of property around the church,

The New Orleans Lynching Cases. NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.-In the case of G. Triana vs. the City of New Orleans and seven other similar suits (known as the Italian cases) argument was heard this morning on the exceptions filed by the city as to the former citations. The court at once ruled out all exceptions, and ordered the city to file answers within twenty-four hours. Immediately thereupon the city attorney filed the answers on the grounds. first, of general denial to the allegations with petitions; second, denying that plainttioned in the petition; third, that the said Vincenzo Trabino is an American citizen and a citizen of Louisiana, legally naturaliled, and, therefore, this honorable court is without jurisdiction. Defendant prays that this suit be dismissed with costs. The answer holds good in all cases, save as to the change of name.

A Torpedo That Uncle Sam Let Go. CHICAGO, Dec. 3 .- The first of the Gathmann torpedo guns was shipped from this the inventor, had hoped that the American government would be the first to recognize the value of his gap, but foreign powers were so desirous of obtaining it and offered such a liberal price for it that he was compelled to accept. Gathmann's torpedo is claimed to have a decided advantage over all other guns in that merchant vessels might be armed with it, and either attack or resist men-of-war with success, as blows from it will destroy any iron-clad as well as a vessel of commerce.

The temper of speculation at the Stock xchange was more bullish Saturday than for some time past, owing chiefly to the fact that the death of Mr. Jay Gould deprives the bears of one of their main supports. For some time past each and every movement for lower prices has been accompanied by statements that Gould was opcrating on the bear side of the account. Many such statements have been made without the slightest foundation in fact. but the talk has, nevertheless, given the bears an unwarranted degree of power. It is noticeable that certain stocks against which the Gould interests are supposed to have been antagonistic have been most conspicuous in the rise that has occurred since the announcement of the demise of Mr. Gould. Another striking feature of the transactions has been the exclusion of buying orders for the account of certain capitalists who have studiously kept aloof from Wall street Pacific rose 14, to 57. Western Union sold up 1 s on statements that the Drexel-Morgan interests would shortly make application for the listing of the shares on the London Stock Exchange. Distilling and Cattlefeeding was strong, and sold up 1%, to 69% the highest point ever attained. Among specialties, Illinois Central advanced 412, to 10512 on rumors that the famous lake-front suit had been decided in favor of the company. Manhattan Elevated rose 14, to 1824, an Delaware & Hudson 3, to 134, on light of ferings. After 11 o'clock there was considerable realizing, and New England declined 1%, Illinois Central 14, Northern Pacific preferred 1 and the remainder of the list from 4 to % per cent. Northern Pacific was bammered on the unfavorable showing of the company for November.

The market closed steady at the reaction already noticed. Railway bonds were firm. The sales were $779,000. Richmond & Danville fives rose 24, to 73. The Reading issues rallied s to a per cent. Northern Pacific couso fives were heavy at 67% @70, with the latest

WHEAT AND PORK LOWER

Several Points Knocked Off Both Cereals and Provisions Yesterday.

Heavy Exports from Both Cossts Had a Tendeucy to Check Selling, and Fluctuations Were Within a Range of 38c.

TRADING AT CHICAGO. After Narrow Fluctuations the Close Was the Lowest Point. CHICAGO, Dec. 3.-Some small chipe were knocked off the leading quotations to-day on 'Change, Compared with last night wheat closed 4c lower. Corn lost Se and pork is off 10c. Wheat receipts in the Northwest were again liberal-1,074 cars-and cables were easy, but the heavy exports from both coasts during the week had a tendency to check the selling. Fluctnations were within %c range.

Corn holders showed a good deal of discouragement and there was free liquidation. The receipts were thirty cars over the estimate, and eighty-three grading to contract were moved. The weather West was favorable for marketing. The closing was at the lowest point for the day.

Oats were heavy and declined sharply, influenced by the free liquidation of December and the weakness in corn. Final prices were the lowest and were %c under last night's quotations. Nelson Morris was a buyer of considerable quantity of pork and lard during the first half-hour of the session. On the resulting advance there was some realizing, and pork was carried down 10c below yesterday's close. Lard and ribs left off unchanged. Estimated receipts for Monday are: Wheat, 150 cars; corn, 250 cars; oats, 250 cars; hogs, 43,000 head. The leading futures ranged as follows:

Recent Achievements on the Turf Revive the Interest in Fine Stock. Theodore A. Dodge, in North American Review. Probably more and better horses are owned in America per thousand of population than in asy other country, and the farmer or corner groceryman, at least in the North and West, can and does afford to keep as good a roadster as the city naboboften a better one. While the average borse lacks the distinctive characteristics of race, he has exceptionally good qualities. American horses are, as a rule, surefooted. There are more broken-kneed nage in cabs and livery stables in England four-fold than here, Smooth roads and level meadows uniformly breed borses less careful how they tread than rough roads and stony pastures. The Eastern granite soil produces safer steppers than the clay of the South. Our horses are of even disposition; one rarely sees a brute or a biting, striking, kicking devil in America. They are easily broken. In Kentneky the children ride the colts, often with only a stick to guide them. "I consider," said Herbert, long ago, "the general horse of America superior, not in blood or in beasty, but decidedly in hardshood to do and to endure, in powers of travel, in speed, in docility and in good temper, to any other race or general horses in the known world." Except, perhaps, in the matter of trotting, the main distinction between the horse in England—as typical of Europe (for all Europe now is imitating England in matters equine -and the horse in America has lain in the lack of aystem in breeding. Of very late years there has been considerable attention paid in this country to breeding. and the admixture of different bloods, which has produced "nondescripts with which America is overron," is being avoided. That breeds have been kept separate in England is due to the fact that the raising of horses has largely been in the hands of great land-owners or capitalists, and the farmers who raised horses had their intelligence as well as their stud to profit by; whereas, in America, until of recent years, breeding of all but thoroughbreds was, with few exceptions, an entirely random affair. A farmer had a stanch mare. The only available stallion was in the neighboring village-perhaps on circuit. All he could see was that there were good qualities present in both, and be believed that these would be transmitted. Race was never dreamed of. Often the mare was not bred from until she was unfitted for work by something which equally untitted her for breeding. No doubt the average produce of this lack of method may have been of excellent service in its way, but it was none the less "nondescript." In England the thoroughbred or racer, the hunter, the hackney, the cob, the Galloway, the Shetland, the carriage horse, the gigster, the Suffolk Punch, Clydesdale, and other cart horses, the Cleveland bays and black Hanoverians bave all been kept distinct and are regularly bred.

Cheap Adulteration.

The fact that horseradish is adulterated s well known, but it is doubtful if the lovers of the pungent condiment are aware of the extent to which this is practiced. It is stated on good authority that during the last thirty days there have been shipped through the port of St. Albans, Vt., from Canadian points, not less than 11,807 bushels of turnips, assigned to different horseradish firms in the United States. The only amelioration of this fact is the consideration that the adulteration is a harm-

Should Learn from the Copy-Book,

Pittsburg Dispatch. Indiana teachers have been duped by a man who sold them alleged copies of the questions they would have to answer in their examinations. The copies were a product of the seller's imagination, and the dupes are attempting to recover the amount spent. "Cribbing" is bad among pupils, but worse among those who have the said pupils in charge. By this time the teachers should be convinced beyond doubt that the copy-books are right in asserting that honeaty is the best policy.

the day, the new books that are being talked of, new works of art that are attracting attention, and interesting novelties even in more serious lines. While my lady is in the hands of her maid being dressed for the dinner or reception, the on such subjects as may be discussed at the function she is to attend; and so, thoroughly equipped, my lady goes forth to astonish her hearer with her eleverness and to increase the fame of the American woman for brightness, intelligence and versatility. There Was a Man in the Case. DETROIT, Dec. 3.—An afternoon paper says that the woman calling herself Miss Lottie Anderson Berbard, who committed snicide in San Diego, Cal., several days ago, is really Miss Lizzie Wylie, of this city. Five weeks ago last Monday she went out, ostensibly to go down town on an errand, and never returned. There is J. G. Longfield, and he is said to have eloped and married the girl.
